THE ASSUMPTIONIST CENTER ...

a place where we learn together,
a place where we discover what it means to be Church.

In order to help that happen, we need to think and talk together.
And so, we are happy to announce this semester's

CONVERSATIONS AT THE CENTER
on SUNDAY, March 19

Pathways of Life as Single and Catholic in Today's World

In an issue of America Magazine (Jan 2016), it is said that the "church is increasingly recognizing the vocational dimension of single life, but that does not mean that today's single Catholics have it easy." What, then, are some of these challenges in being a single Catholic today? What is the gift of being a single person of faith? In what ways can faith communities nourish the possibilities offered by single life in the church?

We are grateful to have Elyse Raby and Alfred Pang facilitate this conversation around these questions. Elyse is a doctoral student in Systematics Theology at Boston College, with an interest in theological anthropology and ecclesiology. Alfred Pang is a doctoral student in Theology and Education at Boston College, and a resident at the Assumptionist Center.
