

On Thursday, December 28, a lively group of young people arrived at the Assumptionist general house in Rome, a small part of the 40,000 who are gathering in the Eternal City for the annual youth gathering. Three young Assumptionists joined six others (three Hungarians, two Portuguese, and a Pole) at our house.

From 28 December 2012 to 2 January 2013, the city of Rome is hosting the 35th European meeting of young people. Forty thousand young adults from across the European continent and beyond are gathering in the Italian capital for six days of prayer, reflection and life with parishes, families and religious communities in and around Rome.
