

The UEA will hold a new session from August 21 to 25 this summer at the Assumptionist center in Lyon, France. About 300 participants are expected to attend: teachers, lay Assumptionists and other friends, religious in formation, those who support ecumenical dialogue, and many others. The format remains similar to that of years past. Under the direction of experts, there will be conferences, workshops, personal witnesses, etc.

Dialogue is needed more than ever. It is an essential element of our humanity, in a world where fear trump trust. « Dialogue, let us enter in dialogue! ». Who does not want to dialogue? This word is bandied about a lot these days. At the level of the entire planet ---- between cultures, religions, civilizations, generations, neighborhoods, not mention next-door neighbors. Everyone is calling for it. But, in fact, how many people actually DO it? Has ‘dialogue’ become a catch-all expression, an impossible ideal, a Pollyannaish wish?

See more at: http://www.assomption.org/fr/evenements/universite-europeenne-assomptionnist