

From May 8-22, 2014, ten current and future novice-masters gathered in Rome to discuss their work. The aim of the session was to offer them an opportunity to evaluate their work, to gain insights from their peers, and to make recommendations that might allow them to carry out their duties better and to improve the quality of all novitiates of the Congregation in the future.

Among the participants were the current novice-master of the Province, Fr. Richard Lamoureux, and the incoming novice-master, Fr. Ngoa Ya Tshihemba. Other novice-masters present came from Vietnam, Madagascar, Tanzania, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Togo, France, and Brazil. The program was organized by the International Formation Commission and chaired by the head of this commission, Fr. Emmanuel Kahindo Kihugho, the vicar general, and two other general assistants, Frs. Marcelo Marciel and John Franck.

Finally their work is complete. They are all smiling and talking to each other. They are all very happy and proud of their work. They are all very satisfied with the results of their work. They are all very happy and proud of their work. They are all very satisfied with the results of their work.
